1 Introduction

As the Chartered body and largest membership organisation for occupational safety and health professionals, IOSH seeks to continually improve standards of competency within the profession.

One of the ways we do this is by accrediting occupational safety and health qualifications/programmes that meet the relevant academic grade entry requirements as set out for IOSH membership which are fully mapped to the IOSH competency framework.

We welcome applications from both higher education institutions (HEIs) and awarding organisations (AOs) who wish to have their qualifications/programmes accredited by IOSH.

The Institution accredits level 3, 6 and 7 qualifications/programmes as meeting the learning objectives for IOSH membership grades. For Technical, the qualifications/programmes should be at Levels 3–5 and for Certified, they should be at Level 6 and 7.

Application documents:

- Application forms
- IOSH learning objectives – level 3
- IOSH mapping document – level 3
- IOSH learning objectives – level 6
- IOSH mapping document – level 6

3 Eligibility

There are three criteria that must be met to have a qualification/programme accredited by IOSH.

- The HEI or AO presenting one or more of its qualifications/programmes for IOSH accreditation must be recognised by a relevant and reputable education regulator.
- The qualification(s)/programme(s) being presented for IOSH accreditation must be on a regulated qualification framework.
- The qualification(s)/programme(s) must adequately meet the learning outcomes required for entry into IOSH membership as documented in the Institution's competency framework.

IOSH may undertake more stringent checks to ascertain whether the institution and programme(s)/qualification(s) align with IOSH and United Nations standards and values.

This may involve consulting independent recognition and evaluation databases, and analysing for plagiarism, Foreign and Commonwealth Office/regulatory sanctions and discriminatory values.

IOSH reserve the right to refuse accreditation if any of the quality checks are unfavourable. This list isn't exhaustive and IOSH reserves the right to refuse accreditation on other grounds.

4 Standards/learning outcomes/membership

IOSH standards are reviewed, recognised and monitored to ensure that they continuously meet the criteria required for competent OSH professionals.

Providers who are successful in gaining IOSH accreditation status for their qualification are able to use the IOSH logo as a stamp of assurance that their qualification meets this criteria. Gaining accreditation from IOSH will also unlock access to student membership for all learners studying the accredited qualification - which comes with a host of benefits to your learners.

IOSH reserve the right to appraise institutions and programme(s)/qualification(s) outside of the annual review process, if adverse reports are submitted to IOSH in relation to the delivery or content of the accredited programme(s)/qualification(s) or the conduct of the organisation. IOSH may arrange a meeting to discuss the situation, audit, or observe training delivery.

 Should any part of the application fail to meet the requirements for IOSH accreditation, the applicant will be informed at the earliest opportunity. If the qualification/programme doesn't adequately meet the learning outcomes required for entry into IOSH membership then there will be a 12 month window to re-submit the application.

Application form(s)

- We ask for information on your institution/organisation, the qualification(s)/programme(s) you're submitting for accreditation as well as the people involved in programme delivery.
- Prompts are included in the application form to guide you.
- Please provide as much detail as possible.

Programme

- The programme submitted for accreditation by IOSH must be in English.
- Any supporting documentation from a regulator would need to be translated before being submitted to IOSH if needed.
- IOSH can ask for supplementary documents such as course aims, rationale, credit values and assignment briefs to meet the accreditation requirements and mapping criteria.
- Please do not submit partial qualifications/programmes for accreditation.
- The programme must have substantial content and must include taught elements within the course.
- Qualifications/programmes which are research based may not meet all the IOSH learning outcomes. As IOSH-accredited qualifications/programmes are intended to provide the necessary knowledge to meet our entry criteria, IOSH standards need to be reflected in the qualifications/programmes we accredit.

Mapping documents

- Decide where in your qualification/programme the learning outcome is covered.
- Enter row by row the module or unit code as well as the learning objective reference.

- For each qualification/programme accredited, we will issue an accreditation statement.
- The accreditation statement will set out the requirements and conditions for your students/learners to apply for IOSH membership.

6 Appeals

If a programme or qualification does not meet the criteria for IOSH accreditation and the application is unsuccessful, the applicant is entitled to request a review of the decision. IOSH will only undertake a review on the following grounds:

- IOSH made a decision based on inaccurate facts which could have altered the outcome of IOSH decision
- IOSH failed to follow its processes and such failure could have led to a different result.

In requesting a review, the applicant must explain why they consider one of these grounds are met. IOSH reserves the right to refuse a review in the event an applicant cannot provide such explanation. Where a review is granted, it will be overseen by the IOSH Head of Governance or an IOSH appointed subject matter expert with no previous involvement in the application.

Appeal requests should be made in writing, within 30 days of a decision communicated to the applicant, in accordance with the IOSH Accreditation of Programmes and Qualifications Appeals Process and sent to accreditation@iosh.com
