08.00–15.40, Thursday 06 September 2018

Castleknock Hotel, Porterstown Road, Castleknock, Dublin 15, D15 WNR7, Ireland

Overview

IOSH Ireland's conference will focus on workplace safety and workplace health promotion. It will look at how the disciplines can complement each other to support health and safety professionals and provide knowledge and skills that can be taken back to their organisations.

Part of the day will focus on workplace health promotion. Practical advice and techniques will be provided on how to build employee resilience, looking at patterns of behaviour, emotional reactions and expectations in the workplace.

An exciting range of speakers includes Healthy Ireland and the HSA. The HSA will provide information on European Safety Week and the topic for the next two years – Managing Dangerous Substances. They will also discuss the themes of their 2019–2021 strategy.

There will be an exhibition at the conference, where companies will showcase their safety and health products or services, offering delegates ideas for improving safety and health in their workplace.

What's in it for you?

This conference will provide you with updated knowledge and skills, including practical expertise to use in your organisation and personal life. The day will:

- create awareness of how employers can play a role in improving the health and safety of their workers

- provide guidance on workplace health promotion and support for employers
- discuss the objectives of European Safety Week and its focus on Managing Dangerous Substances
- examine forthcoming approaches for workplace health promotion and the HSA's strategy for 2019–2021
- Provide excellent networking opportunities with like-minded people.

Who should attend

This event is open to anyone with an interest in workplace safety and health and workplace health promotion, including:

- IOSH members and non-members
- health and safety professionals
- health promotion professionals
- human resources professionals
- managers

What you need to know

Exhibitor opportunities are available. If you would like to promote your organisation, raise awareness of your brand or showcase a new product or service, please email Louise Griffin (IOSH Event Coordinator) or call +44 (0)116 257 3373 for more information.

Lunch and refreshments will be provided throughout the day. Please note that booking is essential.
