64	Because I obtain no benefits. I generally consider H&S management in the UK to be poor at best. Too many people in the field do not understand the technical complexities of the field they are in. When the old Factory Inspectors' were crated they came from an operational background within the industry they worked in. Most of the H&S personnel I came across in the past 10 years have not got a clue. They think that they are their just to record stats, find faults with others and act as cheer leaders. Most of the health and safety risks are there to be seen and need to be resolved.	1/8/2021 9:54 AM
