Producing an IOSH syllabus from your course material

Sometimes we don't have a syllabus for the course you want to develop. That's not a problem though – it won't stop you from developing your course. Once you've developed your course, we reserve the right to produce a syllabus from your material after it's been approved and licensed by us. This syllabus will then be available to other training providers who meet our approval criteria to run this particular course.

All course materials submitted to IOSH for approval remain the intellectual property of the course owner and are not distributed to other parties.

If we don't approve your training material we'll send you a letter explaining why we haven't been able to approve it on this occasion.

We will consider any safety and health course, for any delivery format, and work with you to help your course gain IOSH approval.

I consent to IOSH making the produced syllabus available to other training providers that meet IOSH's approval criteria to deliver this course.

Part three: Your trainers

All new trainers of IOSH courses will need to have at least Technical membership of IOSH (a safety and health qualification is required) and have up-to-date CPD.

A minimum of an adult training qualification at level 3 on a regulated qualifications framework (RQF) OR successful completion of the IOSH Train the Trainer course is also required, as well as two years' substantial, face-to-face, training delivery experience. Where a sector-specific qualification or experience is required, we will obtain these details from your membership record.

Please complete a trainer application form (see page 6) for all trainers who'll deliver each course, and complete the fields below. Your trainers must be able to provide evidence of their experience and qualifications.

Any information they provide to support their application will be verified – so by providing this information they are consenting to us contacting the third parties.
